INTRODUCTION

In the global economy and in the development of world political and strategic scenario, the Mediterranean region continues to be one of the most vital center for the international balance. Acting in the Mediterranean means moving in one of the thickest network of commercial exchange of the world and in a political and cultural condition incomparable for its complexity.

The need to regulate the turbulent international relations in the Mediterranean region has definitely lead to the official summit in Barcelona between November and December 1995 when the members of the European Commission, the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of EU member countries and the representatives of 12 States bordering the South-Eastern Mediterranean Sea met to set up the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership. The fall of the Soviet block and the political and economic opening of the Non Aligned States demanded new solutions and the settlement of new balances. Through the ratification of bilateral agreements among the countries bordering on the Mediterranean sea and the subscription of multilateral treaties the Barcelona Process has begun. This process has not yet concluded and is very complex in some way.

For the development of an integrated Euro-Mediterranean region it is necessary not only a policy will but also a new Mediterranean ruling class capable of operating in this competitive context which is full of diversity.

The school of Euro-Mediterranean Studies thanks to the highly qualified teaching staff represents one of the training strategic tool for this challenge.

MISSIONS

WHERE

The course will take place in Maratea, a little village of 5,000 inhabitants in the south of Italy.

Informations

"Maybe in Italy there's no more magnificent landscape. Imagine ten and kilometres of uneven coast with caves, overhanging rocks, stacks, soft beaches in front of a wonderful sea, now wide and shut, now close in roadsteads which are little like docks. It is separated from a Dolomitic chains with flesh colored rocks, constellated by quite abandoned villages, ruined castles and old Saracen towers, a woodland slope cut by little rivers and torrents, buried by leafy fronds of holm oaks and chestnut trees."

Indro Montanelli

Maratea is one of the most famous touristic destination for its picturesque coast and mountain landscape, so that it's called the pearl of the Tyrrheanian Sea.

Maratea is the only village in the province of Potenza looking out the sea and spreads on it for 32 Km. Its coast, in a particular geographic position, is rich in inlets, caves, rocks and banks.

There are different characteristic beaches and opposite one of them Santo Janni Island stands out.

The sea beds and 132 caves are worthy of remark for fossil remains and prehistoric finds. Grotta di Marina towers above the others for its stalactites and stalagmites.

The mountains bordering the sea draw lovely panoramic views.
